Technical drawings of a mechanical assembly. The top drawing is a perspective view of a control panel with a digital display showing '0.00' and several buttons. Below it are several cross-sectional views labeled 1 through 10, showing internal components like a motor, gears, and a piston. A small inset drawing shows a detail of a component.

Figure 1 illustrates the 10 different sitting postures used in the study. The postures are arranged in two rows of five. The top row shows three variations of sitting on a chair and two variations of sitting on the floor. The bottom row shows three variations of sitting on the floor and two variations of sitting on a chair. Each posture is labeled with a number from 1 to 10.
